

When undertaking roles and responsibilities remember to ask yourself:

What
,Where Why
it could go wrong??

Then you can proudly say you are risk minded.

Remember : An adventure is only an objective rightly considered. A n objective not achieved is only an adventure wrongly considered.

Progress always involves risks.

However the benefits must be greater than the cost of taking a risk.

Only those who dare to fail greatly can ever achieve greatly.

Therefore

To achieve greatly proper internal control need to be in place to mitigate or reduce the risk of failure.

Risks are inherent to our duties & responsibilities

However

One needs to be carefully not to take risks that can have a negative impact in the achievement of objectives
